Title: A. JOSEPH STACK III;
ASSAULT ON A FEDERAL OFFICER

Synopsis: To open a full investigation.

Details: On 02/18/2010, at 9:56am, the captioned subject crashed an aircraft into 9300 Research Blvd. in Austin, Texas. The building housed the Internal Revenue Service and was immediately adjacent to the Austin Residence Agency of the San Antonio Division FBI office. STACK was formerly employed at DAC Incorporated, an aviation company, located at 6702 McNeil Rd. in Austin, Texas.

Public database search for the subject revealed a self-proclaimed "rant" which condemned the U.S. Government's treatment of it's citizens and specifically alleged unfair taxation and tax laws. In this "rant", the subject also listed the date of his death as 02/18/2010. The subject's residence was burned earlier on the morning of the crash. A search of the subject's vehicle which was left at the airport, revealed there was a 50 gallon drum holding explosive materials.

In lieu of the aforementioned events, a full investigation is opened on JOSEPH STACK, date of birth 08/31/1956, residential address 1827 Dapple Grey, Austin, Texas. Special Agent [REDACTED] Austin RA, will be assigned this case.

Title: EDWARD JOSEPH STACK III-DECEASED;
VERNON HUNTER-VICTIM;
ASSAULTING A FEDERAL OFFICER;

Synopsis: Set lead to Los Angeles to conduct interview of [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Administrative: Reference 02/22/2010 telephone calls between Special Agent (SA) [REDACTED] San Antonio Field Office, ARA, and SSA [REDACTED] and SA [REDACTED] Los Angeles Field Office, RVRA.

Details: On 02/18/2010, at 9:56 a.m. (CST), FBI San Antonio, ARA, responded to an airplane crash into a building occupied by the IRS at 9430 Research Boulevard, Austin, Texas. Investigation determined the pilot of the aircraft, a Piper PA 28 236 airplane, tail number N2889D, was Andrew Joseph Stack III, White male, date of birth 08/31/1956. Additionally, it appears Stack set his residence, located at 1827 Dapple Gray lane, Austin, Texas, on fire, prior to crashing the airplane into the IRS facility. This fire resulted in the total destruction of the residence.

Investigation conducted by FBI San Antonio, to include interviewing numerous associates of Stack, as well as Stack's spouse, [REDACTED] indicated Stack was distraught due to marital difficulties, as well as having financial difficulties. Stack was recently the subject of an IRS audit, resulting in Stack owing approximately $20,000.00 in back taxes to the IRS.

Re: 89B-SA-62043, 02/22/2010

A "manifesto" purported to be posted by Stack was found on-line on his alleged personal web-site, www.embeddedart.com. In the six page manifesto, found on the web-site, signed by "Joe Stack," he described his hatred for the IRS, and listed his year of death as 2010. A copy of this Manifesto has been e-mailed to SA [redacted] on 02/22/2010. Additionally, a letter addressed to IRS, Office of Professional responsibility, written by Stack, was recovered at a Georgetown Municipal Airport hanger, rented by Stack. In the letter, Stack expressed his dislike for the IRS in relation to the abovementioned IRS audit. A copy of this letter was sent to SA [redacted] via facsimile, on 02/22/2010.

To date, no persons interviewed has suggested Stack was involved with any other anti-government groups or individuals. Stack did mention in his manifesto he had been previously introduced to persons in California who were possibly involved in "anti-tax" efforts. It is unclear who these individuals or group was. It is believed Stack went to college at the University of Southern California (USC) in the 1970's. Additionally, it is believed Stack was married to [redacted] (nee [redacted], White female, date of birth [redacted] residing at [redacted] [redacted] California, telephone number [redacted]. It has yet to be determined when Stack and [redacted] married and divorced. It appears Andrew Joseph Stack and [redacted] had a daughter, [redacted] currently residing in Norway. [redacted] was interviewed by Good Morning America on 02/22/2010. During the interview, [redacted] described her father as a "hero." [redacted] expressed her dislike for the United States government and stated this dislike was in part responsible for her leaving the United States several years ago. A copy of this interview has been forwarded to SA [redacted] via e-mail, on 02/22/2010.

[redacted] Date of Birth (DOB): [redacted] of [redacted]
[redacted] Austin, TX 78759, [redacted] was interviewed by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] shortly after an incident involving a small plane flying into a building located at 9420 Research Blvd. Austin, TX. [redacted] advised that he was driving to work along the southbound access road of Highway 183 (Research Blvd) when he saw out of his peripheral vision a big object that he ultimately identified as a small plane coming towards him. [redacted] said the plane came from behind him and the left (north east). [redacted] said it all happened so fast, and he didn't know if he should speed up or slow down to avoid hitting the plane. [redacted] came to a stop on the southbound access road, his windshield was shattered, and his car was pretty severely damaged. [redacted] first thought that some part of the plane hit his vehicle because it was so low to the ground. However, after further consideration, [redacted] believes that he was driving by the building at the same time as the plane made impact, and the debris from the building, and/or the explosion is what damaged his car. [redacted] was asked if he could tell if the plane looked as if it were out of control, or if it appeared to be an intentional act. [redacted] responded by saying he couldn't tell, but he guessed that the plane was out of control because it was so low to the ground. He said it almost looked as if the pilot was trying to make a U turn. [redacted] was asked by Austin Police Department (APD) to stay at the scene, and that his vehicle may need to be impounded as part of the investigation. As directed by APD, [redacted] left the keys to his vehicle on the front passenger seat. [redacted] vehicle is described as a dark color Lexus bearing TX license plate [redacted] advised that he works at XTIVIA, located at 8627 North Mopac Expy Suite 130, Austin, TX 78759.

The IRS completed its audit of STACK's 2007 tax return and compiled a report, which stated STACK did not recognize all of his income in 2007 and that his wife had received "under the table" income that had not been accounted for. The undervalued amount was approximately $12,000. In addition, the IRS found that STACK's airplane should not have been written off as a business expense.

[REDACTED] felt the amount of money the IRS was collecting from STACK seemed to be a reasonable amount especially with it being paid over five years. He said the IRS could have, but did not throw the book at STACK regarding his taxes.

[REDACTED] eventually found out from the IRS that STACK was not happy with his representation and was upset because he was going to lose his plane. In October or November, 2009, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] STACK as a result of his statement and then sent him a letter wishing him luck with his future endeavors. [REDACTED] characterized STACK as creepy and said he would often go off on tirades regarding his taxes during each of their four face-to-face meetings. [REDACTED] doesn't recall STACK ever mentioning an association to a larger anti-tax or anti-government movement or group.

[redacted] Date of Birth (DOB): [redacted] of [redacted] Austin, TX, [redacted] was interviewed by NCIS Special Agent (SA) (and FBI TFO) [redacted] shortly after an incident involving a small plane flying into a building located at 9420 Research Blvd. Austin, TX. [redacted] works at World Market in the Gateway Shopping center located on the southeast corner of Route 183 (Research Blvd.) and Route 360, across from the site of the incident. At about 0955 on 02/18/2010 [redacted] was emptying trash in dumpsters behind the store when he saw a very low flying plane heading west over Tudor Drive. [redacted] described the plane as a small two seat commuter plane, possibly with one engine on each wing. The plane was blue on the sides and white on the bottom, with a name or some letters painted on the side. [redacted] was with two female coworkers from the stock team named [redacted] LNU and [redacted] LNU, who may have actually seen the name or letters on the side of the plane. [redacted] provided his General Manager's name and number [redacted] as a point of contact for reaching [redacted] and [redacted] for interview. [redacted] did not witness the plane hit the building, but when he saw the plane, it appeared to be flying just above the street lights on Tudor Drive, which he believed to be 60 feet tall. In fact, [redacted] thought the plane was going to hit the street lights. [redacted] did not see any sign of damage to the plane, or any signs of distress. The plane was flying low and level.

The last conversation [REDACTED] had with STACK was on Wednesday, February 17, 2010, while they both walked to and from a nearby Sonic restaurant for drinks. STACK asked to join [REDACTED] when he and another colleague were headed to Sonic. [REDACTED] thought this was a bit unusual because STACK was very reclusive.

STACK's normal work hours were 8:00 am to 5:00 pm, Monday thru Friday. STACK usually arrived to work at 7:30 am. On Thursday, February 18, 2010, STACK did not call in or show-up to work.

[redacted] has worked for DAC INTERNATIONAL for the past three and a half years and currently handles inventory for the Engineering Department. [redacted] indicated she talked to ANDREW JOSEPH STACK every once and a while. They had day to day chit chat about the weather. [redacted] knew STACK liked music and that he played.

[redacted] described STACK as being happy, easy-going and concentrated on his work. [redacted] sometimes solicited fundraiser donations from STACK for school and social events her children participated in. STACK would in turn solicit donations from [redacted] as well when his step-daughter was involved in a fundraising event.

[redacted] and STACK engaged in conversation about the government before but [redacted] could not recall the details of that conversation. [redacted] commented that after the incident she read STACK's blog and saw a quote he said previously regarding insanity.

[redacted] recalled that STACK mentioned that quote during a conversation they had a year ago. [redacted] noticed that STACK seemed a little more focused on his work last week. [redacted] recalled greeting STACK last week in the hallway and STACK didn't respond.
That was the last interaction [redacted] had with STACK. [redacted] was not aware of any difficulties STACK may have had at work. [redacted] did not socialize with STACK but had met his wife and daughter on two different occasions.

b6
b7C

[redacted] heard about the incident on the radio while she was driving to work but didn't know it was STACK. She found out it was STACK when she arrived at work. [redacted] said there were no signs that something like this would happen.

[redacted] has worked for DAC INTERNATIONAL for the past two years and is currently the Vice-President of Manufacturing and Engineering. [redacted] indicated he supervised [redacted] who in turn supervised ANDREW JOSEPH STACK. [redacted] first met STACK three years ago when [redacted] did consultation for DAC INTERNATIONAL, before being hired full-time. [redacted] described STACK as a professional and someone who did his job. [redacted] and STACK interacted occasionally, but only on a professional level. They never went to lunch together or otherwise interact socially. [redacted] was told by [redacted] that STACK had an airplane. [redacted] also heard STACK talk about maintaining his currency for his pilot's license.

[redacted] never had discussions with anyone about STACK, nor had he received any complaints about him. STACK seemed to get along with everyone at work. He occasionally would go to Sonic with [redacted] or other employees. He heard STACK played a musical instrument and has played some with someone from the office. [redacted] believed STACK remarried sometime in the last three years and had a step-daughter. [redacted] also recalled STACK's wife came to the office's 2008 Christmas party.

STACK was normally meticulous with his work, sometime to the point of being slow. Whenever his work contained errors, he accepted criticism and always worked to fix the problems.

[redacted] last saw STACK on Wednesday, February 17, 2010. STACK was present at work all day and finished work on a project. STACK called in sick the previous day. However, several other people in the office have come down with illnesses recently.

in the parking outside the store when she heard what sounded like a lawnmower engine. [redacted] turned and looked up to see a very low flying plane flying over the parking lot (heading south). [redacted] stated the plane appeared to be descending and she heard the engine sputtering. [redacted] thought that the plane was going to land in the Arborwalk parking lot, and at one point it appeared to be flying lower than the street lights in the parking lot. However, when the plane reached the middle of the parking lot, the plane turned to the right (heading west), the engine stopped sputtering, and the plane ascended a little and continued across the Mo-Pac (west) just barely making it over the highway because it was flying so low.
Soon after, [redacted] heard an explosion and saw smoke, but did not see the plane hit the building. [redacted] described the plane as being a small two-seat plane that was white or silver on the bottom with Details: On 18 February 2010, the subject flew a small civil aircraft into the building at 9430 Research Boulevard, Eschelon 2, Austin, Texas, causing the death of one IRS employee and extensive damage to the building housing the investigative section of IRS Austin.

(U//FOUO) FBI SA is endeavoring to construct a time line of significant and formative events in the life of the subject before he came to Texas. It appears he was in Pennsylvania from birth (08/31/1956) until approximately 1977, when he probably moved to southern California. By 2004, he was in Texas.

In particular, the following information is being sought:

b6

[redacted] was driving southbound on Highway 183 and was just north of the Highway 360 intersection when he observed a single engine propeller airplane flying towards the north. [redacted] observed the airplane bank to the left towards the Echelon I building. The airplane leveled off after banking towards the left. The airplane then banked again just before impact.

[redacted] did not observe the impact of the airplane with the building. [redacted] was unable to observe the impact because the Highway 360 bridge was obstructing his view. [redacted] did see a fireball coming from the building. When [redacted] drove past the building the building was on fire and had a hole in the side of it.

[redacted] first thought something was not right because the airplane was flying too low. [redacted] thought the pilot was trying to land the airplane on Mo-Pac Expressway.

[redacted] DOB [redacted] maiden name [redacted] telephoned the Anchorage FBI at approximately 11:15am on 2/18/2010 to report possible threats observed while he was moderating a chat-room last night between the hours of 12:00 (midnight) and 2:00am Alaska time. [redacted] is one of the chat-room moderators for justin-tv.com. Justin TV has a Fox News Live Channel USA feed, and an area to create a tea party chat room on the side. [redacted] reported the web address of the chat room is <http://www.justin.tv/r-371601> or [http://www.justin.tv/\[redacted\]-371601](http://www.justin.tv/[redacted]-371601). [redacted] was not certain of the last character, either an I or a 1).

While moderating the chat room, possibly around 1am Alaska time on 2/18/2010 [redacted] observed abnormal chatter by one of the persons in the room. [redacted] reported the person stating things like: 'would someone be a hero if they took out a Federal building without causing peripheral damage, without collateral damage to bystanders? If someone took out a Federal building like McVey, would they be considered a hero?' [redacted] stated that the chatter seemed to be labeling someone who took out a Federal building as a hero. [redacted] was concerned about this chatter as the tea party is intended to be a peaceful setting. [redacted] stated that type of chatter is not normal. [redacted] described the chatter as "something different about him, sounded deliberate, not normal." As moderator, [redacted] banned the person making the statements from the chat room. [redacted] reviewed the person's profile which listed them to be from Austin, Texas.

[redacted] was not able to recall the person's screen ID or any other identifying information. [redacted] tried to pull up the site to see if there was any additional information he could provide, and he was not able to locate any record. [redacted] advised that he is not sure if the chat log(s) are saved by the owner of the chat site. [redacted] advised the site is run from 2 servers in New Jersey.

[redacted] recalled that at least two other persons were in the chat room during his time moderating last night/morning. The screen names of the other chatters are [redacted] and [redacted]. [redacted] screen name is [redacted].

This morning [redacted] learned about the plane crash in Austin, Texas and telephoned the Anchorage FBI to report his concern about the web chatter observed in the early morning hours. [redacted] is available by cellular telephone at [redacted] and is willing to talk with law enforcement at his work, Craft Market, [redacted], located at 401 5th Avenue, Fairbanks, Alaska.

[redacted] Texas driver's license number [redacted] of [redacted] Austin, Texas 78703, telephone number [redacted] employed by Discoverbase.com, 9065 Jollyville Road, Suite 102, Austin, Texas 78759, telephone number [redacted] was interviewed in the parking lot of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Austin Resident Agency located at 9420 Research Boulevard, Suite 400, Austin, Texas. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information: b6 b7C

At approximately 10:00 a.m., [redacted] was on the ramp from Mo-Pac Expressway to northbound Highway 183 when she observed an airplane flying over the Courtyard Marriott on the northeast side of Highway 183. The airplane was flying in a southwest direction. The airplane "teetered" back and forth a little and eventually was in a position that [redacted] saw the top of the airplane when it flew over Highway 183 and hit the Echelon I building. The airplane impacted the building nose first at approximately the third set of black panels from the bottom of the building.

[redacted] first thought the airplane might be a glider or a large remote control airplane but quickly realized the airplane was too large to be a glider or remote control.

[redacted] described the aircraft as not being a jet airplane, although [redacted] did not recall seeing a propeller. The airplane was a single engine airplane that was white in color. There was navy blue on the tips of the wings and on the nose of the airplane.

[redacted] drew a diagram of the location of the airplane to assist in her description of what she observed. This diagram was placed into an FD-340 envelope and will be maintained in the 1A section of the file. b6 b7C

[redacted] date of birth [redacted] social security account number [redacted] was interviewed at his place of residence, [redacted] Lago Vista, Texas, and his cellular telephone number is [redacted]. Present at the interview was Immigration and Customs Enforcement Special Agent [redacted]. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

b6

[redacted] did not know ANDREW JOSEPH STACK.

[redacted] believed that STACK did what he felt was necessary to defend his rights. [redacted] is an advocate of that type of thinking. With regards to STACK's plane crash, [redacted] stated it was unfortunate that an innocent person had to die but it was necessary.

When [redacted] was asked if he thought it was O.K. that STACK killed an innocent person, he stated that it was if the United States Government brought about STACK's demise and he was just defending his rights. [redacted] would retract that statement if STACK brought about his own demise. [redacted] further stated that innocent people have died in every war and will continue to do so.

[redacted] had subscribed to Justin.TV's Fox News Live Channel USA live feed for about a week. He believed the channel to have been active for a long time before he signed up since it had about 1.5 million views and 1-2000 users watching at any given time. There was an optional Tea Party chatroom on that channel which [redacted] used. User's of that chatroom had a multitude of viewpoints concerning the Tea Party.

[redacted] admitted that he posted the following statements around 4:00 a.m. Central Standard Time on February 18, 2010:

b6
b7C

"Would someone be a hero if they took out a Federal building without causing peripheral damage, without collateral damage to bystanders? If someone took out a Federal building like McVey, would they be considered a hero?"

[REDACTED] made those statements without knowing that STACK would crash his plane into the IRS building later that day. While making those statements, [REDACTED] was considering the link between the patriots of the revolutionary war and their destruction of King George's property with those people today who resist the government stripping away rights.

b7C

[REDACTED] is an advocate for the violent overthrow of the United States Government if it ever comes to that, however, we are not at that point yet but it is inevitable. When asked at what point would the overthrow be necessary, he said when his personal rights are stripped away.

[REDACTED] is a proponent of 2nd amendment rights and would not give up his guns if someone came to the door and tried to take them from him.

[REDACTED] stated, "I am not a radical myself but if their reasoning is just and they have the greater good in mind then I'm O.K. with that."

[REDACTED] was confident that an uprooting and reconstruction of the United States Government was coming but was unsure what his role would be. Evidence of this would be an increase in the size of the current Tea Party and more individuals who have nothing left to lose commit acts like STACK.

[REDACTED] stated, "people who have a major problem with the Government will go after a federal building."

b6

[REDACTED] drives a Green Jeep Cherokee with the Texas license plate [REDACTED] and is currently unemployed but looking for a job. He has been attending Austin Community College on and off for 2½ years working on degrees in English, Spanish, and Kinesiology. He plans on starting a degree in Physics as well. He is paying for college on his own.

[REDACTED] was amenable to recontact by the FBI.

b7C

WATERLOO COMPUTING is contracted by DAC to provide computer services for DAC. [redacted] is the primary support person for the DAC account.

DAC allows employees to remotely connect to the DAC network to conduct work outside of the office. Remote access methods used are Virtual Private Network (VPN) and web e-mail access. DAC maintains logs of both of these types of remote access methods.

The DAC network consists of private internal Internet Protocol (IP) addressing. The DAC network is protected by a firewall that provides Network Address Translation (NAT) for the network. All outbound traffic from DAC comes from the IP address 198.211.199.99. Internet connectivity is provided by TelWest. DAC does not log outbound connections from DAC to the Internet.

Based upon authorization provided by [redacted] President of DAC, [redacted] provided a DVD containing the remote access logs for web email access and VPN connectivity and a .pst file containing the contents of the email account jstack@dacint.com. This was the email account for JOE STACK.

[redacted] was interviewed at his residence by writer on February 18, 2010. The interview was predicated by a telephone call from [redacted] to the FBI in Anchorage made earlier on February 18, 2010. [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview. He then provided the following information:

[redacted], also known as [redacted] is described as a white male, date of birth [redacted] lives at [redacted] Fairbanks, Alaska 99701, telephone number [redacted] works at a store named, "The Craft Market", at 401 5th Avenue, Fairbanks, Alaska 99701, telephone number [redacted]

[redacted] generally works normal working hours at the store, then he goes on the internet at his residence from approximately 6:00 p.m. to 4:00 a.m. Much of his internet time is spent on a chat room identified as <http://www.justin.tv/r-371601>. This is a chat room hosted by Justin TV with a Fox News Live Channel USA feed on one side and a tea party type chat room on the other side. This particular chat room was established by a person with the screen name of [redacted] from New Jersey on November 30, 2008.

[redacted] was appointed as a moderator for this chat room during 2009 due to his heavy participation. [redacted] was serving as a chat room moderator during the night of February 17, 2010 to February 18, 2010. [redacted] knows most of the usual participants of the chat room by screen name. Most of the conversation in the chat room concerns discussions between "Birthers", or individuals who doubt the native born status of President Obama, and "Truthers", or individuals who believe that the terrorist attack of September 2001 was a government conspiracy.

At approximately midnight on February 17, 2010, [redacted] monitored a conversation on the chat room by an individual with the screen name, [redacted]. According to his profile, this individual first joined the chat room on November 22, 2009 from Austin, Texas. [redacted] is not a usual chat room participant. [REDACTED] described his tone as deliberate, not normal.

[REDACTED] determined that this individual's conversation was not appropriate for the chat room, and he banned the individual from further participation. [REDACTED] believes that the individual was advocating violence against a federal building. The normal discussion in the chat room is political but peaceful.

[REDACTED] made statements on the chat room to the effect of, "Would someone be a hero if they took out a federal building without causing peripheral damage, without collateral damage to bystanders?" and "If someone took out a federal building like McVeigh, would they be considered a hero?"

[REDACTED] does not have any chat room logs, print outs of the conversations, or other documentary evidence of the chat room activity on that date. Two other individuals on the chat room that night had screen names of [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] screen name is [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] called the FBI in Anchorage after he heard about the plane crash at a federal building in Austin, Texas on February 18, 2010. [REDACTED] does not know the actual identities of either [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] stated that he would allow the FBI to image his computer in an effort to identify these individuals.

After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] lives in Corpus Christi, Texas. The morning of February 18, 2010 he was attending a class at St. Edwards University. SA [redacted] pointed toward the Echelon III building asking if [redacted] had been in class in that building. [redacted] indicated that he had been attending class in the building to which SA [redacted] pointed. While on break, [redacted] was looking out a window when he noticed a white "cessna" with blue stripes flying very low north over the hotels across Highway 183. [redacted] thought the plane had two propellers. The plane banked to the left towards [redacted] lost sight of the plane just before it struck the building next to the one in which he was standing. [redacted] felt and heard the noise of the impact. It shook the windows in his building.

[redacted] of Spamgourmet.com, phone number [redacted] Houston, Texas 77010 was interviewed telephonically concerning the spamgourmet.com account sgmail. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

Spamgourmet.com provides anti-spam services. Once a user has an account at spamgourmet.com they can create multiple limited use email addresses that they can use or provide to others at their discretion. Email sent to these limited use email addresses will then be forwarded by Spamgourmet.com to the user's real email address.

When asked about the domain dfgh.net [redacted] explained that there is a guy in Turkey who owns the domain dfgh.net and has set the mx record to point at spamgourmet.com. This is the only domain like that and it is not advertised by spamgourmet.com.

Spamgourmet.com does not maintain any of the email they receive for their users. It is either deleted or forwarded on. Spamgourmet.com does maintain three types of data for each user account. These are the date, time and IP address from which the account was created, the email address to which email is forwarded, and a transactional log detailing the limited use email addresses used by the spamgourmet.com user.

For the account sgmail [redacted] provided the following information:

Created on 09/06/2003 at 19:07 CST by IP address 24.43.33.12. Email is forwarded to sgmail@embeddedart.com. Since the time of creation the account sgmail has created approximately 97 limited use email addresses. [redacted] of T35 Hosting, email address [redacted]@bellatlantic.net or [redacted]@t35.com, phone number [redacted] address [redacted] New Jersey 07410, was interviewed telephonically concerning T35 hosting services provided by T35 Hosting for embeddedart.com. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

A customer can administer their website two different ways. T35 Hosting provides a utility called Cpanel that provides the user with web access to their public_html folder allowing them to upload and alter webpages and other content. Alternatively a user can also utilize an FTP server that also provides access to the user's public_html folder. If a user uses the Cpanel utility their last login will be reflected in a file called .lastlogin located in the root of their account. The .lastlogin file will contain the IP address from which the user accessed the service and the files date and time stamp will reflect the time that this access occurred. If the user uses the FTP server then their login will be tracked in an access log kept by the FTP server. This log will also reflect the IP address used to access the account and the date and time of access, among other data. Users access their email via POP3.

[redacted] advised that the .lastlogin file for embeddedart.com listed the IP address 68.172.224.41. This IP address belonged to one of [redacted] technicians who had accessed the account in order to delete the forwarding on the [redacted] email account based upon an account owner request. [redacted] emailed a copy of this request to Special Agent (SA) [redacted] who also emailed a copy of the FTP log for embeddedart.com to SA [redacted]. Following is a summary of that FTP log:

[redacted] reviewed Target's external video cameras with SA [redacted] and Officer [redacted]. At approximately 9:55 am, the camera on the north west corner of the building by the docking area across from Sam's Club recorded what appeared to be an airplane traveling from left to right. Also at 9:55 am, the camera on the rear of the building recorded what appeared to be a plane traveling from left to right and then behind some trees followed shortly thereafter by billowing smoke rising above the trees.

[redacted] provided copies of these surveillance videos on a CD to SA [redacted] along with a map of the Target store where [redacted] had drawn indicators for the location and direction of each of the cameras. He also signed a FD-26 Consent to Search form and an FD-597 Receipt for Property form.

Target maintains the video from their external cameras for at least 29 days.

Synopsis: Set lead to Legat Copenhagen to conduct interview of [REDACTED] in Norway.

Enclosure(s): Enclosed for Legat Copenhagen are a copy of an FD-302, dated 02/24/2010, concerning the interview of [REDACTED] A manifesto believed to be written by Andrew Joseph Stack III; A document concerning a Good Morning America interview of [REDACTED] and a letter addressed to IRS Office of Professional Responsibility, believed to have been authored by Andrew Joseph Stack III.

Administrative: Reference 03/10/2010 e-mail between Special Agent (SA) [REDACTED] San Antonio Field Office, ARA, and ALAT [REDACTED], Copenhagen.

Details: On 02/18/2010, at 9:56 a.m. (CST), FBI San Antonio, ARA, responded to an airplane crash into a building occupied by the IRS at 9430 Research Boulevard, Austin, Texas. Investigation determined that the pilot of the aircraft, a Piper PA 28 236 airplane, tail number N2889D, was Andrew Joseph Stack III, White male, date of birth 08/31/1956. Additionally, it appears that Stack set his residence, located at 1827 Dapple Gray lane, Austin, Texas, on fire, prior to crashing the airplane into the IRS facility. This fire resulted in the total destruction of the residence.

Re: 89B-SA-62043, 03/10/2010

Investigation conducted by FBI San Antonio, to include interviewing numerous associates of Stack, as well as Stack's spouse, [redacted] indicated Stack was distraught due to marital difficulties, as well as having financial difficulties. Stack was recently the subject of an IRS audit, resulting in Stack owing approximately $20,000.00 in back taxes to the IRS.

A "manifesto" purported to be posted by Stack was found on-line on his alleged personal web-site, www.embeddedart.com. In the six page manifesto, found on the web-site, signed by "Joe Stack," he described his hatred for the IRS, and listed his year of death as 2010. Additionally, a letter addressed to IRS, Office of Professional Responsibility, written by Stack, was recovered at a Georgetown Municipal Airport hanger, rented by Stack. In the letter, Stack expressed his dislike for the IRS in relation to the abovementioned IRS audit. A copy of the manifesto and this letter is being provided to Legat Copenhagen for informational purposes.

To date, no persons interviewed has suggested that Stack was involved with any other anti-government groups or individuals. Stack did mention in his manifesto that he had been previously introduced to persons in California that were possibly involved in "anti-tax" efforts. It is unclear who these individuals or group were. It is believed Stack went to college at the University of Southern California (USC) in the 1970's.

Investigation determined Stack was previously married to [redacted] currently residing in [redacted] California. [redacted] and Andrew Joseph Stack III divorced in 1999. [redacted] has a daughter, [redacted] currently residing in Norway. In an interview with [redacted] dated 02/24/2010, (FD-302 enclosed), [redacted] stated [redacted] was not Stack's biological father; however, Stack raised [redacted] as his own daughter. [redacted] was interviewed by Good Morning America on 02/22/2010. During the interview, [redacted] described her father as a "hero." [redacted] expressed her dislike for the United States government and stated that this dislike was in part responsible for her leaving the United States several years ago. [redacted] later retracted the statement claiming Stack to be a hero.

Read: Joseph Stack Manifesto

Updated Thursday, 18 Feb 2010, 8:31 PM PST
 Published Thursday 18 Feb 2010, 1:39 PM PST

This is a note, found on the website EmbeddedArt.com. It's believed to be the last note left by Joseph Stack, shortly before he crashed his plane into a building in Austin, Texas.

If you're reading this, you're no doubt asking yourself, "Why did this have to happen?" The simple truth is that it is complicated and has been coming for a long time. The writing process, started many months ago, was intended to be therapy in the face of the looming realization that there isn't enough therapy in the world that can fix what is really broken. Needless to say, this rant could fill volumes with example after example if I would let it. I find the process of writing it frustrating, tedious, and probably pointless... especially given my gross inability to gracefully articulate my thoughts in light of the storm raging in my head. Exactly what is therapeutic about that I'm not sure, but desperate times call for desperate measures.

We are all taught as children that without laws there would be no society, only anarchy. Sadly, starting at early ages we in this country have been brainwashed to believe that, in return for our dedication and service, our government stands for justice for all. We are further brainwashed to believe that there is freedom in this place, and that we should be ready to lay our lives down for the noble principals represented by its founding fathers. Remember? One of these was "no taxation without representation". I have spent the total years of my adulthood unlearning that crap from only a few years of my childhood. These days anyone who really stands up for that principal is promptly labeled a "crackpot", traitor and worse.

While very few working people would say they haven't had their fair share of taxes (as can I), in my lifetime I can say with a great degree of certainty that there has never been a politician cast a vote on any matter with the likes of me or my interests in mind. Nor, for that matter, are they the least bit interested in me or anything I have to say.

Why is it that a handful of thugs and plunderers can commit unthinkable atrocities (and in the case of the GM executives, for scores of years) and when it's time for their gravy train to crash under the weight of their gluttony and overwhelming stupidity, the force of the full federal government has no difficulty coming to their aid within days if not hours? Yet at the same time, the joke we call the American medical system, including the drug and insurance companies, are murdering tens of thousands of people a year and stealing from the corpses and victims they cripple, and this country's leaders don't see this as important as bailing out a few of their vile, rich cronies. Yet, the political "representatives" (thieves, liars, and self-serving scumbags is far more accurate) have endless time to sit around for year after year and debate the state of the "terrible health care problem". It's clear they see no crisis as long as the dead people don't get in the way of their corporate profits rolling in.

And justice? You've got to be kidding!

How can any rational individual explain that white elephant conundrum in the middle of our tax system and, indeed, our entire legal system? Here we have a system that is, by far, too complicated for the brightest of the master scholars to understand. Yet, it mercilessly "holds accountable" its victims, claiming that they're responsible for fully complying with laws not even the experts understand. The law "requires" a signature on the bottom of a tax filing; yet no one can say truthfully that they understand what they are signing; if that's not "duress" than what is. If this is not the measure of a totalitarian regime, nothing is.

How did I get here?

My introduction to the real American nightmare starts back in the early '80s. Unfortunately after more than 16 years of school, somewhere along the line I picked up the absurd, pompous notion that I could read and understand plain English. Some friends introduced me to a group of people who were having "tax code" readings and discussions. In particular, zeroed in on a section relating to the wonderful "exemptions" that make institutions like the vulgar, corrupt Catholic Church so incredibly wealthy. We carefully studied the law (with the help of some of the "best", high-paid, experienced tax lawyers in the business), and then began to do exactly what the "big boys" were doing (except that we weren't stealing from our congregation or lying to the government about our massive profits in the name of God). We took a great deal of care to make it all visible, following all of the rules, exactly the way the law said it was to be done.

The intent of this exercise and our efforts was to bring about a much-needed re-evaluation of the laws that allow the monsters of organized religion to make such a mockery of people who earn an honest living. However, this is where I learned that there are two "interpretations" for every law; one for the very rich, and one for the rest of us... Oh, and the monsters are the very ones making and enforcing the laws; the inquisition is still alive and well today in this country.

That little lesson in patriotism cost me $40,000+, 10 years of my life, and set my retirement plans back to 0. It made me realize for the first time that I live in a country with an ideology that is based on a total and complete lie. It also made me realize, not only how naive I had been, but also the incredible stupidity of the American public; that they buy, hook, line, and sinker, the crap about their "freedom"... and that they continue to do so with eyes closed in the face of overwhelming evidence and all that keeps happening in front of them.

Before even having to make a shaky recovery from the sting of the first lesson on what justice really means in this country (around 1984 after making my way through engineering school and still another five years of "paying my dues"), I felt I finally had to take a chance of launching my dream of becoming an independent engineer.

On the subjects of engineers and dreams of independence, I should digress somewhat to say that I'm sure that I inherited the inclination for creative problem solving from my father. I realized this at a very young age.

The significance of independence, however, came much later during my early years of college; at the age of 18 or 19 when I was living on my own as student in an apartment in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. My neighbor was an elderly retired woman (80+ seemed ancient to me at that age) who was the widowed wife of a retired steel worker. Her husband had worked all his life in the steel mills of central Pennsylvania with promises from big business and the union that, for his 30 years of service, he would have a pension and medical care to look forward to in his retirement. Instead he was one of the thousands who got nothing because the incompetent mill management and corrupt union (not to mention the government) raided their pension funds and stole their retirement. All she had was social security to live on.

In retrospect, the situation was laughable because here I was living on peanut butter and bread (or Ritz crackers when I could afford to splurge) for months at a time. When I got to know this poor figure and heard her story I felt worse for her plight than for my own (I, after all, I thought I had everything to in front of me). I was genuinely appalled at one point, as we exchanged stories and commiserated with each other over our situations, when she in her grandmotherly fashion tried to convince me that I would be "healthier" eating cat food (like her) rather than trying to get all my substance from peanut butter and bread. I couldn't quite go there, but the impression was made. I decided that I didn't trust big business to take care of me, and that I would take responsibility for my own future and myself.

Return to the early '80s, and here I was off to a terrifying start as a 'wet-behind-the-ears' contract software engineer... and two years later, thanks to the fine backroom, midnight effort by the sleazy executives of Arthur Andersen (the very same folks who later brought us Enron and other such calamities) and an equally sleazy New York Senator (Patrick Moynihan), we saw the passage of 1986 tax reform act with its section 1706.

For you who are unfamiliar, here is the core text of the IRS Section 1706, defining the treatment of workers (such as contract engineers) for tax purposes. Visit this link for a conference committee report (<http://www.synergistech.com/1706.shtml#ConferenceCommitteeReport>) regarding the intended interpretation of Section 1706 and the relevant parts of Section 530, as amended. For information on how these laws affect technical services workers and their clients, read our discussion here (<http://www.synergistech.com/ic-taxlaw.shtml>).

SEC. 1706. TREATMENT OF CERTAIN TECHNICAL PERSONNEL.

(a) IN GENERAL - Section 530 of the Revenue Act of 1978 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

(d) EXCEPTION. - This section shall not apply in the case of an individual who pursuant to an arrangement between the taxpayer and another person, provides services for such other person as an engineer, designer, drafter, computer programmer, systems analyst, or other similarly skilled worker engaged in a similar line of work.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE. - The amendment made by this section shall apply to remuneration paid and services rendered after December 31, 1986.

Note:

- "another person" is the client in the traditional job-shop relationship.
- "taxpayer" is the recruiter, broker, agency, or job shop.
- "individual", "employee", or "worker" is you

Admittedly, you need to read the treatment to understand what it is saying but it's not very complicated. The bottom line is that they may as well have put my name right in the text of section (d). Moreover, they could only have been more blunt if they would have come out and directly declared me a criminal and non-citizen slave. Twenty years later, I still can't believe my eyes.

During 1987, I spent close to $5000 of my 'pocket change', and at least 1000 hours of my time writing, printing, and mailing to any senator, congressman, governor, or slug that might listen; none did, and they universally treated me as if I was wasting their time. I spent countless hours on the L.A. freeways driving to meetings and any and all of the disorganized professional groups who were attempting to mount a campaign against this atrocity. This, only to discover that our efforts were being easily derailed by a few moles from the brokers who were just beginning to enjoy the windfall from the new declaration of their "freedom". Oh, and don't forget, for all of the time I was spending on this, I was losing income that I couldn't bill clients.

After months of struggling it had clearly gotten to be a futile exercise. The best we could get for all of our trouble is a pronouncement from an IRS mouthpiece that they weren't going to enforce that provision (read harass engineers and scientists). This immediately proved to be a lie, and the mere existence of the regulation began to have its impact on my bottom line; this, of course, was the intended effect.

Again, rewind my retirement plans back to 0 and shift them into idle. If I had any sense, I clearly should have left abandoned engineering and never looked back.

Instead I got busy working 100-hour workweeks. Then came the L.A. depression of the early 1990s. Our leaders decided that they didn't need the all of those extra Air Force bases they had in Southern California, so they were closed; just like that. The result was economic devastation in the region that rivaled the widely publicized Texas S&L fiasco. However, because the government caused it, no one gave a shit about all of the young families who lost their homes or street after street of boarded up houses abandoned to the wealthy loan companies who received government funds to "shore up" their windfall. Again, I lost my retirement.

Years later, after weathering a divorce and the constant struggle trying to build some momentum with my business, I find myself once again beginning to finally pick up some speed. Then came the .COM bust and the 911 nightmare. Our leaders decided that all aircraft were grounded for what seemed like an eternity; and long after that, "special" facilities like San Francisco were on security alert for months. This made access to my customers prohibitively expensive. Ironically, after what they had done the Government came to the aid of the airlines with billions of our tax dollars ... as usual they left me to rot and die while they bailed out their rich, incompetent cronies WITH MY MONEY! After these events, there went my business but not quite yet all of my retirement and savings.

By this time, I'm thinking that it might be good for a change. Bye to California. I'll try Austin for a while. So I moved, only to find out that this is a place with a highly inflated sense of self-importance and where damn little real engineering work is done. I've never experienced such a hard time finding work. The rates are 1/3 of what I was earning before the crash, because pay rates here are fixed by the three or four large companies in the area who are in collusion to drive down prices and wages... and this happens because the justice department is all on the take and doesn't give a fuck about serving anyone or anything but themselves and their rich buddies.

To survive, I was forced to cannibalize my savings and retirement, the last of which was a small IRA. This came in a year with mammoth expenses and not a single dollar of income. I filed no return that year thinking that because I didn't have any income there was no need. The sleazy government decided that they disagreed. But they didn't notify me in time for me to launch a legal objection so when I attempted to get a protest filed with the court I was told I was no longer entitled to due process because the time to file ran out. Bend over for another $10,000 helping of justice.

So now we come to the present. After my experience with the CPA world, following the business crash I swore that I'd never enter another accountant's office again. But here I am with a new marriage and a boatload of undocumented income, not to mention an expensive new business asset, a piano, which I had no idea how to handle. After considerable thought I decided that it would be irresponsible NOT to get professional help; a very big mistake.

When we received the forms back I was very optimistic that they were in order. I had taken all of the years information to Bill Ross, and he came back with results very similar to what I was expecting. Except that he had neglected to include the contents of Sheryl's unreported income; $12,700 worth of it. To make matters worse, Ross knew all along this was missing and I didn't have a clue until he pointed it out in the middle of the audit. By that time it had become brutally evident that he was representing himself and not me.

This left me stuck in the middle of this disaster trying to defend transactions that have no relationship to anything tax-related (at least the tax-related transactions were poorly documented). Things I never knew anything about and things my wife had no clue would ever matter to anyone. The end result is... well, just look around.

I remember reading about the stock market crash before the "great" depression and how there were wealthy bankers and businessmen jumping out of windows when they realized they screwed up and lost everything. Isn't it ironic how far we've come in 60 years in this country that they now know how to fix that little economic problem; they just steal from the middle class (who doesn't have any say in it, elections are a joke) to cover their asses and it's "business-as-usual". Now when the wealthy fuck up, the poor get to die for the mistakes... isn't that a clever, tidy solution.

As government agencies go, the FAA is often justifiably referred to as a tombstone agency, though they are hardly alone. The recent presidential puppet GW Bush and his cronies in their eight years certainly reinforced for all of us that this criticism rings equally true for all of the government. Nothing changes unless there is a body count (unless it is in the interest of the wealthy sows at the government trough). In a government full of hypocrites from top to bottom, life is as cheap as their lies and their self-serving laws.

I know I'm hardly the first one to decide I have had all I can stand. It has always been a myth that people have stopped dying for their freedom in this country, and it isn't limited to the blacks, and poor immigrants. I know there have been countless before me and there are sure to be as many after. But I also know that by not adding my body to the count, I insure nothing will change. I choose to not keep looking over my shoulder at "big brother" while he strips my carcass, I choose not to ignore what is going on all around me, I choose not to pretend that business as usual won't continue; I have just had enough.

I can only hope that the numbers quickly get too big to be white washed and ignored that the American zombies wake up and revolt; it will take nothing less. I would only hope that by striking a nerve that stimulates the inevitable double standard, knee-jerk government reaction that results in more stupid draconian restrictions people wake up and begin to see the pompous political thugs and their mindless minions for what they are. Sadly, though I spent my entire life trying to believe it wasn't so, but violence not only is the answer, it is the only answer. The cruel joke is that the really big chunks of shit at the top have known this all along and have been laughing, at and using this awareness against, fools like me all along.

I saw it written once that the definition of insanity is repeating the same process over and over and expecting the outcome to suddenly be different. I am finally ready to stop this insanity. Well, Mr. Big Brother IRS man, let's try something different: take my pound of flesh and sleep well.

EXCLUSIVE: Stack's Daughter Retracts 'Hero' Statement

Joe Stack's Daughter Samantha Bell Agrees With Victim's Son: Victim Vernon Hunter Was the 'Hero'

The daughter of the man who carried out a suicide plane attack against the IRS in Texas said today she considered her father a hero for standing up to "the system," although she later back away from that statement.

Joe Stack's daughter says father's act was "inappropriate" but understandable.

"His last actions, the suicide, the catastrophe that caused injuries and death, that was wrong," Samantha Bell, Stack's daughter from his first marriage, told "Good Morning America" in a morning television exclusive telephone interview that aired today. "But if nobody comes out and speaks up on behalf of injustice, then nothing will ever be accomplished. But I do not agree with his last action with what he did. But I do agree about the government."

When "Good Morning America" asked if she considered her father a "hero," Bell, 38, said, "Yes, because now maybe people will listen." Bell later called "Good Morning America" to retract her statement and say unequivocally that her father was "not a hero."

Rather, she said the only hero involved in the attack was its victim, Vietnam veteran Vernon Hunter, the only person besides Stack killed in the attack.

"I don't want to hurt anybody," Bell said. "We are mourning for Vernon Hunter."

"His last actions, the suicide, the catastrophe that caused injuries and death, that was wrong," Bell said in the aired interview. "But if nobody comes out and speaks up on behalf of injustice, then nothing will ever be accomplished. But I do not agree with his last action with what he did. But I do agree about the government."

WATCH: FBI Struggles to Define Stack's Act

Before crashing a small airplane into Internal Revenue Services offices in Austin, Texas, last week, Stack posted a lengthy, rambling suicide note online that railed against the government, the IRS and taxes specifically as part of a "totalitarian regime."

Ken Hunter, son of Vernon Hunter, who was killed in the attack, refuted Bell's earlier statement, saying Stack's not the hero in this situation, but his father is.

"How can you call someone a hero who after he burns down his house, gets into his plane ... and drives it into the building to kill people?" Hunter told "Good Morning America." "My dad Vernon did two tours of duty in Vietnam. My dad's a hero."

Bell said there were "zero signs" that her father harbored such strong anti-government sentiments.

"He may have been somewhat frustrated, but he was a very quiet man," she said. "The father I knew was a loving, caring, devoted man who cherished every moment with me and my three children, his grandchildren. ... This man who did this was not my father."

"He must've kept this bottled up all these years."

Vernon Hunter was also a grandfather and to Vernon's son, Stack's actions will not change anything.

"The only difference he made was he took away from my family and murdered a 20-year U.S. Army vet," Ken Hunter said.

To Hunter's family, Bell offered her "deepest condolences."

"I lost my father, but I feel guilty to be mourning my father because I know other people have been affected and a wonderful man has died because of my father's actions. And I need to pay my respects and mourn for the man and his family," she said.

PROBLEM: criminal agencies are kidnapping children, looting lifesaving, torturing, killing, and robbing US citizens. SOLUTION: don't attack or murder these ruthless thugs. that's exactly the kind of behavior they need to ratchet up their game. then they can play the "victims," and paint you as the "terrorist" (when it's actually the other way around). so, what do you do, then? do exactly what MLK and Gandhi did: ignore them and their criminal behavior. refuse to play their game. we outnumber them a thousand to one. refuse to be intimidated. refuse to accept their false choices. just laugh, and walk away. of course, if you're attacked, and your life and family is threatened by these punks, defend yourself but NEVER initiate violence -- NEVER.

Re: Complaint is to be registered against

[redacted] CPA
[redacted]

b7C

In mid 2008, after fighting with tax forms and incomplete and inadequate bookkeeping records for six months and not knowing how to proceed, I approached [redacted] and explained my predicament.

My new wife and I had been married in July of 2007. With that I inherited a whole set of financial circumstances that badly needed to be brought under control. Erasing her rather substantial debt was only a small part of the problem, the real issue was to untangle her struggling teaching/performance business and try to organize it into something profitable.

In an effort to get this process jump-started, I decided that I needed to take the hit and cash in the rest of my retirement savings to secure the first tool, a rebuilt grand piano (the industry "workhorse").

After seeing her records, or the lack thereof, I realized immediately that the only reason she was not being endlessly harassed by the IRS was that she was struggling to earn $30,000 a year. I also realized that when she married me the IRS would now make full use of this situation to victimize me; which it has done in spades.

So here I was at the doorstep of one, [redacted] I explained the situation and provided him with the information I had gathered. It consisted primarily of standard paperwork (W2s, 1099s, etc), and electronic documentation. This documentation included a spreadsheet with our combined expense deductions, some preliminary calculations I had made, and a MS Word document generated by and containing all of my wife's income for which she had not received a 1099.

During our initial interviews, the issue of primary concern was an investment in a piano and, to a lesser extent, my own set of long-standing business deductions. I explained to [redacted] that because of the extension I filed, the large capitol expense, and the presence of the SEP penalty that was levied against us because of the source of our investment funds, I was fully anticipating an audit and needed to be well prepared.

When the return had been prepared and we received the forms back I felt I had every reason to believe that they were in order. I had delivered all of the information to [REDACTED] and he came back with results very similar to what I was expecting. The omissions were that he had neglected to include the contents of my wife's unreported income ($12,700 worth of it) and he offset it by not taking Schedule C deductions in the manner established by the our audit of 1997. To make the matter worse, he was aware this was omitted but I didn't figure it out until he revealed it out deep in the audit process. Sadly, by that time it was becoming evident that he was representing himself and not me; his only concern being that he covered his tracks and looked good.

There are two fundamental questions that were never addressed (by either the CPA or the auditor) during the preparation or the audit, in spite of my repeated pressing.

The first question is: Why is this return different than the 1997 amended returns audited and approved by the IRS that have aircraft businesses listed on Schedule C? The business is the same, the expenses are the same, and the circumstances surrounding the expenses are the same, and nobody could suggest any change in regulations that would apply.

The second question is: Given the disarray of the information presented at the preparation and my expressed concern about the impending audit, why did this registered CPA wait until the audit was under way to suggest that I would need to justify EVERY financial transaction for the year, not just those involving taxable income? In retrospect, it is obvious to me now; not being an accountant, however, it wasn't at the time. This, on the other hand, is exactly the kind of guidance for which I was paying handsomely and didn't receive.

So now was stuck in the middle of this disaster trying to defend transactions that have no relationship to anything tax-related (at least the tax-related transactions were documented, albeit poorly). Transactions I never knew anything about, transactions that had no remote connection to anything tax-related (and therefore, to be blunt, are none of your goddamned business), and things my wife had no clue would ever matter to anyone.

Congratulations, over the years you've taxed and harassed my business into oblivion. Now, thanks to a very great degree to the efforts of [REDACTED] and your morally and intellectually bankrupt system, you've managed to achieve the very same end result for my marriage and my life.

By this time, all of the related documentation and the end result should now be a matter of public record.

Summary of Examination:

A CART computer forensic image was produced on the submitted digital evidence.

Details of Examination:

The following items were generated during the examination process:

DEAN1 Seagate hard drive, serial number: 9SZ6GEPH

DEAN2 Maxcell LTO Ultrium 3 tape

DEAN2A Floppy

The following processes were performed on each submitted digital evidence item:

- A physical inventory of the submitted evidence was completed.
- After write-protecting the original evidence, a forensic image of the submitted evidence was made to forensically prepared media. A verification was made, matching this image to the original evidence.
- Backed-up image of original evidence.

Disposition of Evidence:

The original digital media was returned. The derivative evidence created: DEAN1, DEAN2 and DEAN2A, was entered into Evidence Control and returned to San Antonio. The notes of the examination were placed in an FD-340 envelope which will be maintained in the 1A section of the case file.

Re: 89B-SA-62043, 03/16/2010

Details: An Anchorage (AN) Computer Analysis Response Team (CART) request (reference AN CART Request #80903) for: "Complete image of [redacted] E-Machine computer and flash drive and process for evidence review" was submitted by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] on February 19, 2010.

On March 10, 2010, Writer contacted Supervisory Special Agent [redacted] and SA [redacted] both provided confirmation that San Antonio (SA)/Austin RA still required the forensic image of [redacted] digital media.

On March 11, 2010, Writer and CART On-the-Job-Trainee SA [redacted] traveled to Fairbanks, Alaska to fulfill this CART request. At the AN/Fairbanks RA, the signed FD-941, Consent to Search Computer(s), was obtained from the desk of SA [redacted] SA [redacted] was out on annual leave and had previously informed OJT [redacted] that he would leave the document on his desk for AN CART's utilization.

Writer and OJT [redacted] obtained the E-Machine and a Seagate external hard drive from [redacted] and provided him an FD-597, Receipt of Property form. Writer and OJT [redacted] brought the digital media back to the AN/Fairbanks RA to perform the CART work required.

After completing the necessary CART work, the E-Machine computer and Seagate external hard drive were returned to [redacted] with an FD-597, Return of Property form.

On March 12, 2010, Writer spoke with SA [redacted] a Forensic Examiner with SA CART. SA [redacted] provided that AN CART did not need to complete the CART examination and processing of [redacted] digital media. Instead SA [redacted] requested the forensic image be transferred to SA CART for any additional forensic work.

b7C

Based on these facts, Writer created a backup of the forensic image, but performed no additional forensic work.

The forensic image and backup of that image produced by AN CART will be transferred to SA CART and no further work will be performed by AN CART.

Title: EDWARD JOSEPH STACK III (DECEASED);
VERNON HUNTER (DECEASED) - VICTIM;
ASSAULTING A FEDERAL OFFICER;

Synopsis: Set lead to Laboratory to conduct trace analysis of ignitable liquid residue on remainder of 55 gallon plastic drum.

Package Copy: Being forwarded under separate cover is 1B5, barcode E4200434.

Details: On 2-18-2010 at 9:56a.m. (CST), FBI San Antonio, ARA, responded to an airplane crash into a building occupied by the IRS at 9430 Research Boulevard, Austin, Tx. Two people were killed in the attack. The pilot and an IRS agent were killed. In the crime scene search, a partially melted plastic 55 gallon drum which was believed to be in the aircraft was found at the crime scene. The airplane has four seats and three of the seats were removed and found in the hanger at the airport where the airplane took off from. In addition, a similar 55 gallon drum was found in the same hanger leading investigators to believe the remains of the drum found at the crime scene was in the aircraft.

It is requested to conduct trace analysis of ignitable liquid on remainder of 55 gallon drum.
